Technology & Commercial Construction

Henry Purdy, Vice President of Product Management for iSqFt, offers up a look at how technology has shaped the way the commercial construction industry works, some challenges that lie ahead, and a little (informed) speculation about what may be around the bend. Equal parts retrospective and futuristic, this presentation is designed to inform, entertain, and provide a new perspective on the tools you use every day.

Ethics

There are many reasons that business ethics matter. Companies that have made a commitment to behaving in an ethically responsible manner know that committing to ethical behavior is not only the right thing to do – it's also good business. Please join us for a discussion on how ethics plays important role in the construction industry.
